

Windows 10

Although Support for Microsoft Windows 7 ended last month, there is no need to panic if you did not yet upgrade to Windows 10. Right Click Solutions has helped numerous clients with creating and executing a customized Windows 10 upgrade solution for their business.

Microsoft will no longer provide free bug fixes and security patches for the Windows 7 operating system. Thus, if you have not upgraded to Windows 10, you will still be able to work as usual for now, but you do have some exposure to cyber threats and operating system glitches. We highly recommend that you connect with the team at Right Click Solutions to review your upgrade options and create a custom upgrade plan with one of our technical experts.

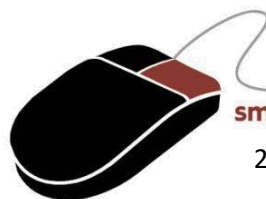

What are the implications of continuing to use Windows 7?

- Applications and programs will run but might start to have issues
- No more security updates for the software
- Software companies will no longer support Windows 7
- New hardware may not work with the old operating system

Do you have questions?

- Can I upgrade my existing PC to Windows 10?
- Can support for Windows 7 be extended?
- Will Internet Explorer still be supported on Windows 7?
- Can I get a free upgrade to Windows 10?
- Does this also apply to Windows Embedded 7?
